

The corrected comparison.

Nasdaq-100 share portfolios and an ETF under the same Irish tax scenario. All values are nominal euros.

Provisional backtest. The stock portfolios differ from ETF exposure. The next page states the fixes and remaining limits.

Active strategies also review departed stocks quarterly. Signal-date tests seek sales with no extra CGT.

Orders execute at later-session prices. Actual gains and taxes can differ from signal-date estimates.

€210,936.48 contributed / 192 payments / 16 years. Differences include exposure, costs and tax.

Fixes applied. Limits retained.

The model now separates decisions from execution and corrects specific cash-flow errors.

WHAT CHANGED

01 / LATER EXECUTION

Signal dates fix sale units and purchase cash budgets.
Orders fill at a later eligible session's close.
Actual prices set realized gains, losses, and tax.
Annual gain reviews: 15 December or prior weekday.
Final liquidation follows the fixed end date.

02 / CASH AND COSTS

ETF tax uses the same-day contribution first.
Only the shortfall requires a sale of ETF units.
Effect versus the old rule: +€3,606.
Compulsory corporate cash receipts have no trade fee.
The Expedia spin-off no longer adds false cash.

03 / CDK AND LOGMEIN DIVIDENDS

The correction adds 42 ordinary dividend schedules.
Issuers confirm 41 payments. 1 remains declaration-only.
Derived ex-dates fix entitlement before payment.
Sales after entitlement preserve the right to payment.
